Greens challenged over alleged bylaw breach

The Country Alliance party has called on the Greens to comply with local advertising bylaws.

The call comes after a Country Alliance member reported seeing several signs promoting the Greens were displayed outside the Whitehorse City Council on Sunday 21 June this year.

“We asked the Council if the Greens had permission to display their signs, and they advised that the Greens did not have the necessary permits”, said spokesman Andrew Jones.

“The Council said that any breaches will be dealt with but on this occasion, they were unable to identify who was responsible for the placement of the signs”.

“With a state election due next year, we simply ask that the Greens ensure their advertising complies with the relevant laws, like everybody else does”.
